CURRENT SPORTING NOTES

Today's Schedule Washington at Cleveland.

Baltimore at Pittsburg. Brooklyn at Louisville.

The Washington club opened up a series of three games in Cleveland yesterday and for once at least found the club representing that city very much to their liking, winning easily by the score of 14 to 3. Sudhoff, the little twirler who has done so well since graduating into major league ranks, was on the rubber for the Clevelands, and the Senators saluted him as if a long-lost brother was found. Opposed to Sudhoff was the wonder of the nineteenth century, Sir Augustus Weyhing, who placed another victory to his credit through a masterly exhibition of the twirling art Local enthusiasts hardly appreciate the great work of Weyling this spring, but with even the rank support he has received from his fellow Senators, Gus has always pitched effectively. He is thoroughly acquainted with all the batting faults of the Cleveland veterans, and it was almost a foregone conclusion that he would win his game when he opposed them. Lave Cross, one of the most consistent stickers in the league, was the only Cleveland player to get more than one hit off of Weyhing's de-

Coupled up with Weyhing's good work was the fine all-round playing of the other eight Senators. Cassidy erred at first in dropping two thrown balls, but they were ot costly, and the big fellow hammered out two singles and a double. Bonner was the other transgresser in the error column, but ie, too, came to the rescue with his bat, slugging the ball for two triples and a single. The other Senators fielded their positions well, and "Buck" Freeman made home run that went down as the longest it on the Cleveland grounds this season.

Two victories for the Senators in succes-Perhaps Richard Padden didn't play a fast shortstop yesterday. Nine assists and three put-outs without an error are pretty good work for a man who is said to have a bad arm. Place Gus Weyhing with a team like the Circinnatis or the Bostons and he would be one of the most talked-about twirlers in the big league. He hasn't lost a game for the Senators this season; the contests he has not won were solely the fault of his

The Baltimores plainly show the weakness of their team when Robison is not with them. Nothing has been too strong for the Orioles since the season opened, but yesterday they went down before the misfit Pittsburgs. McGraw held up his end of the team by making four hits, but "Robby" was missed in the generalship.

Jimmy Casey is making his errors regularly every day at third base, but the Broklyns are so strong that they can stand these misplays. When Casey transgressed while playing with the Senators it appeared as if every error he made gave the opposing team a run. Specials from St. Louis say that vesterday's time in that city was dull and listless from the home club's point of view. When Charley Nichols is twirling his best he is liable to make any club play listless ball, and as he held the "Perfectos" down to four hits yesterday it was their turn to appear in the role of "dead ones." Breitenstein won his first game vesterday for Cincinnati and he was hit hard at that. Once more the Reds put up a perfect fielding game and again the twirler is given credit for winning the game. What a great club that is from which pitchers can gain reputations.

"The best club in the league," the Quaker lads, so called by the Sporting Life, has been going down the line to defeat quite regularly of late. The Phillies have gained renown for taking a slump early in the season, and it is supposed they would feel loresime if they didn't hang on to this reputation. With McGraw on third as captain and manager what an aggregation of winners the Phillies would be Pitcher Joe Corbett recently created many smiles over the league circuit by betting "Honest John" Kelly $400 to $500 that the Brooklyns would win the pennant this season. Joe must have been figuring pretty close on that $500, for it is now reported that he will join the "Superbas" the middle of July for the wind-up of the season. Kelly would have been wise to bar out Joe's pitching arm. President Ebbitts will not accompany his team to Louisville. Ebbitts is going to Cleveland on a secret mission. He will leave this morning. It was rumored last night that Hanlon has a desire to get one of the Cleveland pitchers, and that Ebbitts own grounds by the score of 5 to 4. The Glants outbatted the Reds, but their two fielding errors were disastrous and account

The game was poorly played throughout, from a fielding standpoint, both teams having six misplays marked against them. QUINN PROVED A GOOD ONE.

Defeated Lenhart, Roeber's Wrestling Partner, in a Short Time.

Jack Quinn of Alexandria proved too nuch for Roeber's wrestling partner, Charlie Lenhart, at Kernan's last night. Roeber had been announced to meet Fred. Miller of Brooklyn, whom he defeated in thirteen minutes. Quinn challenged the champion from the audience, but as Roeber was engaged, Quinn was promised $15 if he could last fifteen minutes with Lenhart. He accepted, and easily defeated Lenhart in two minutes and thirty-nine seconds, much to the delight of the audience. Quinn then insisted on having a try at Roeber, and the latter consented to meet him tonight, when he will forfeit $25 if he fails to defeat the Virginian in fifteen minutes. Leo Pardello, another of Roeber's combination, will wrestle the preliminary bout with Robert Roy Mackey, the local wrestler, for a special purse.

After the bout last night Quinn and Roeber became personal in their remarks to one another, and there came near being a little impromptu scrap in full view of the audience that was not down on the bills. Quinn became threatening in his manner, and endeavored to strike Roeber, but friends of both men stepped in and quieted the belligerents.

"I have nineteen pairs of shoes at home I cannot wear!"

That's what a lady told one of our clerks the other day, and she would have had the twentieth pair the same way if she had acted on her own judgment.

"HOW GOOD THAT FEELS," she exclaimed after she had stood up in the one we selected for her, after taking a careful "examination" of the foot and diagram. The illustration shows the shoe. The close fit through the heel held the foot without slipping and the full roomy forepart gave that "good feeling." arriving at an agreement in regard to the choice of officers of the committees. Apparently many difficulties have arisen, and false and exaggerated reports have been circulated regarding these hitches. Such stories must be received with caution, as persons hostile to the aims of the conference have been busily engaged in spreading distrust. The story about Count von Munster probably arose from the fact that his name does ably arose from the fact that his name does not appear as a member of any of the com-mittees, while all the other chiefs of dele-gations have joined one or more commit-tees. But, it is pointed out, delegates, altees. But, it is pointed out, delegates, although not members of a committee, are privileged to attend its sessions and participate in the discussions.

Rumor Regarding Germany's Delegate to The Hague Denied.

A dispatch from The Hague yesterday says:

The chiefs of the delegations held frequent conferences today, with the view of quent conferences today, with the view of obligatory, it can be rendered at least opobligatory, it can be rendered at least op-tional, and I believe that after the con-ference the powers will recognize that they have at their disposal a means of regulat-ing their differences otherwise than at war. That will be an immense advance.

The delegates were unanimously of the opinion that the question of the reduction of armaments would be the most difficult to meet, and they believed it would be relegated to the rear of the two other features, especially since the special object of the conference is now acknowledged to be an endeavor to establish means for the solving of international difficulties without recourse to war, thus increasing the rarity of Andrew D. in extending to naval battles the Geneva convention of 1864 and in increasing the protection of private property in naval wars. Relative to the reduction of arma-ments, I am not in a position to speak on the subject."
